

Amendments to the Abstract:

Please replace the Abstract paragraph on page 24 with the following:

A system is described in which user data which includes image data, location data, and time data regarding the image data, are supplied from a first terminal. This data is then combined with previously-stored map and other data, and presented for display on a second terminal.